Sub : Safety and Security measures

        The Safety and Security function deals with both Institution and employee safety and security. It includes the Institution's efforts to prevent and/or mitigate loss, risks to or from staff, threats to its physical assets, damage to its technology and intellectual property, or risks of any other kind arising from all elements surrounding the work environment. Safety and security encompasses two overlapping areas of practice, sometimes treated separately and sometimes combined, as appropriate.

        Running a large campus with more than 1800 students is a huge responsibility which comes with its own set of challenges

        KVPC has taken adequate measures by evolving a student safety & security system to ensure that students and teachers have adequate layers of security from the moment they enter the campus to the time they leave. Each level is a combination of the traditional and the modern, and has been implemented after proper thought and consideration.

        A traditional guard house is the first and basic level of security in our campuses which keeps vigil 24x7 at the gates, regulating the entry and flow of visitors into the premises. Besides this, biometrics-operated turnstiles have been installed at all the gates around the campus to ensure that only authorized persons enter with proper identification. The turnstiles work only on tapping of the specially-made identification card for all staff and students. This secured entry and exit system ensures that all the gates are monitored at all times

        More than 75 CCTV cameras have been deployed across the campus, including at all entry-exit points, which monitor in-campus movements round the clock.

        The security cameras are a higher level of safety for students and their belongings, monitoring the movement of visitors in the campus as well as of the students. Cameras are also present inside the classrooms.

        All the buses have been provided with CCTV cameras. Such level of vigilance ensures that the students feel a sense of security once they enter the campus and the parents can be rest assured that all activity in the campus will be monitored through our well-executed security systems.
